

INAUGURAL EUROPEAN CONFERENCE

MAY 9 TO 11, 2019

IVETA Europe invites you to its first regional conference on vocational education and training (VET) in beautiful Malta. Come share your expertise, ideas and experience with like-minded educators and industry practitioners in an idyllic location. The conference is organised jointly by Warnborough College and St Joseph Mater Boni Consilii School, Malta.

The 2019 Theme: Revaluating TVET

TVET generally has the dubious position of being the poor cousin in relation to higher education. Students and their parents look at TVET options as the last resort if a university place of their choice is not available. Governments throw money to build ever-expanding universities yet grudgingly acknowledge that TVET institutions are a necessity without the same level of commitment or investment.

The fact is that TVET skills create new businesses and generate employment. The world runs on TVET skills in virtually all industries and sectors. While some nations are starting to realise the importance of investing in and building up this area, there others who place less importance on it in their quest to become “developed”. This conference seeks to redress the imbalance in the views of TVET across the different stakeholders.
